A Master Class in Sandplay Therapy with Ruth Ammann
President, International Society of Sandplay Therapy

SACRED SPACES The transcendent and sacred in the therapeutic process

Saturday 24th November 2007: 9am – 4pm
Sydney University Village, 90 Carrillon Avenue, Newton

Cost: $199 if booked and paid before 31st October 2007
$225 for bookings after 1 November
(includes PD and ISST hours certification, light lunch, refreshments)

Morning: With rich illustration Ms Ammann will discuss the nature of the sacred in the natural world, architecture, art and dreams. She will then elaborate with a sandplay process, looking particularly at the moment and means by which the sacred reveals itself, impacting both client and therapist.

Afternoon: Each sand picture arises from an interweaving of memories, experiences and reflections. From its creation a new story develops. Life is no longer the same. Focusing and concentrating energy during the therapy hour, into the containing sandtray, transforms future life possibilities. Each sand picture has a history and a future -acting as a door from one emotional and psychic experience to another. Hence each sand picture shapes and enhances the therapeutic process. Discussion and questions on sandplay in clinical practice will be invited.

The Master Class is suitable for

- experienced therapists, practitioners, clinicians
- practitioners interested in learning about and developing the use of sandplay in their clinical practice
- individuals interested in developing awareness of the transcendent and sacred in their lives and environment;
- it will attract 6 professional training hours towards membership of the International Society for Sandplay Therapy (in addition to our usual professional development hours).

Ruth Ammann, author of Healing & Transformation in Sandplay and other works assisted Dora Kalff. She is a Jungian Analyst, member of the Faculty Board of the CG Jung Institute and President of the International Society for Sandplay Therapy. Ms Ammann was the keynote speaker at the First Australian Sandplay Conference in Sydney and regularly teaches in USA, Korea, China, Japan, Europe and South America. Ruth Ammann is a world authority on Sandplay Therapy, and generously returns to Australia to share her experience, wisdom and knowledge and her depth of clinical comment.
